featuring artwork made by Mitchell County Students

Northlight Building on the campus of Penland School of Crafts

Each year hundreds of Mitchell County children are engaged in arts programs that enhance their academic experience and give voice to their creative spirits. This exhibit celebrates art made by students in public and private schools, and by homeschooled students.

TRAC's gallery in Spruce Pine is undergoing major renovations this spring, which will result in expanded exhibition space, teaching classrooms, and more! The Annual Arts in Education Showcase must go on, so we're moving the venue to Penland School of Crafts this spring, to coincide with Penland's Annual Community Open House. The showcase will return to TRAC in 2013 when renovations are complete.

We hope you will join us for this special exhibition and will stay to participate in art activities in Penland's studios. It should be a fun, art-filled day! For more information email
