

Audrey Bell

Statement: I make observational drawings and paintings. I have painted portraits of people in my life, recorded the weather patterns outside my window, and documented the plants and insects living through winter in my neighborhood. Over the past few months of quarantine, I started drawing my living space over and over. To me, these drawings are an observation of separation and interdependence. This subsequent series of drawings is based on photographs of Shaker interiors by William F. Winter.

Bio: Audrey Bell is an artist and illustrator, among other things. She was a Core Fellow at Penland School of Crafts from 2013 - 2015. She earned an MSc in Medical Art from the University of Dundee in 2018. She currently lives in Detroit.
