Cassie Brazeau is a multimedia artist based on the east coast, with focuses in print, illustration and ceramics.

Using bold color and dark humor, her work is driven by the nostalgic simplicity of childhood, mimicking the grotesque and vile humor of early 90s cartoons. Expressive and exaggerated, her work often serves to simplify the complex and raw emotions of adulthood into a much more palatable youthful angst and child-like whimsy.

Motivated and supported by an incredible network of creative friends, artists, and musicians in the seacoast area of NH, she has a printing studio outfitted with her own Conrad Monotype Press and seeks to make print-making a more accessible medium.
